

Blog Export: Beaneball, <http://beaneball.org/>

Sunday, February 27, 2005

Innovation without research: bad

Management by Baseball is an always-excellent blog and this post is particularly excellent. It's about innovation without research, in broad ways, with the baseball application being that Juan Pierre ought to ignore Lenny Harris's advice to try to walk more. That last bit may sound heretical to the sabermetrically-minded, but give it a chance, because he's done his homework.

Posted by jason in Baseball at 10:24